Tiffany Bond Gets It

"Hire me to devote my work week to turn nonsense into common sense.

I would really enjoy having a full time job where I get to dig through thousands of pages of proposed legislation each month."

Tiffany Bond is family law attorney, working from Springvale to Millinocket. While in college, she started to read proposed federal law, a practice she continues to this day. In 2017, she noticed that bills being proposed down in D.C. weren't looking out for the interests of families. She wants to create good laws that give our children a functional future. That's something everybody can agree on.

Tiffany Focuses On Realistic Issues

Rural Broadband

High-speed internet is vital infrastructure for healthy economic growth in Maine's communities, improving quality of life, public safety and education. Maine communities' access to high-speed internet is key to improving economic output and reducing isolation.

Marijuana Legalization

Maine has voted to have communities decide how to handle marijuana. The federal government should not interfere in our state sovereignty on this issue so that communities may begin to benefit from the addition of jobs in the research and tourism sectors.

Vote Tiffany Bond on November 6
